5. COMPETITION

To be able to appear in the classification it is necessary to fill in the requested information: mail, name and surname, club, country and category. They are the same data that were completed in the registration and that will be used to make the classifications.

Then the problem sequence begins.

Each problem will have a photo, which presents a stage where the six beacons are located. The beacons will be indicated by an arrow and a letter and placed in different positions. They will always be identified from left to right, and from A to F (regardless of depth).

Below the photo there will be an orientation plane that corresponds to the photograph.

The plane will have a single circle. The center of the circle defines the position in which the beacon we are looking for should be.

The North is also indicated since the photo and the plane are in the same line of sight.

A symbol has been used in cartography X to indicate where the Street view image is taken from.

Below the plane is the description of the control that defines the exact location with respect to the element.

To solve the problems, it must be analyzed if the center of the circle coincides with any of the beacons in the photo and if it also coincides with the description of the indicated control, placement and orientation.

If there are no beacons, the letter Z (ADVANCED CATEGORY ONLY) should be indicated as an answer.

If there is a beacon that complies with the indicated, we must register the answer with the letter that corresponds to that beacon.

To record the response and under the description of controls there are seven boxes, named A, B, C, D, E, F and Z.

A vertical list of seven options for selection:

- A
- B
- C
- D
- E
- F
- z

The box indicating the letter corresponding to the chosen beacon must be checked.

Any control with no response or with more than one will be void for the competition

Once the 25 problems are solved, the test is over, the time ends when the form is sent by pressing "Send".
